

Nutshell Learning

Specialist Knowledge Services:

From time to time in any organisation situations arise where it is beneficial to get “another set of eyes” to look at it and give another view.

This service, based on our skills in situational research and research in general, offers this other view. It is an open ended service and is really controlled by the client in defining the problem they are facing and what they want to achieve. It is really an eclectic service because it can bring together diverse skills to look at the situation and suggest a way forward.

The service aims to improve you productivity by being able to assign the situation for efficient resolution.

Possible Situations:

This is not an exhaustive list – just some ideas about the service
